

Marilyn Freedlund retired from District 87 in 1989 as the Director of Instruction after serving District 87 for 27 years as an elementary teacher, Director of the SEIML Project (a federally funded curriculum project for BJHS students), and Supervisor of Curriculum. After retirement, she taught English at Heartland Community College and supervised student teachers for Illinois State University. Marilyn devoted her efforts to making all schools better for all students. Her favorite “focus” has always been the Bloomington Schools and its teachers as well as her commitment to books and reading.
